

Rosenthal Heritage Turandot – Part 1/4

East meets West: Turandot

Inspired by the opera of the same name by Giacomo Puccini, the Turandot décor is a homage to the 18th century chinoiserie, which already played an important role in the Rosenthal designs of the late 19th century. A lavish round dance of peony blossoms, bamboo and ginkgo leaves in delicate colours meets golden dragonflies. The source of inspiration for the poetic porcelain paintings lies on the shore of the West Lake in Hangzhou, China, which is shown in the interweaving of western and eastern elements.

Rosenthal Heritage – Dynasty

Family stories: Dynasty

Birds, cornucopias and trees of life meet tendrils, flowers and cameos. The heraldic animals, fantasy creatures and plant arrangements inspired by the Orient, Renaissance and Art Nouveau are reminiscent of Rosenthal's rich heritage. A collection of heraldic motifs and symbols becomes an artistic coexistence telling stories of families and generations. The luxurious decor, with an elegant palette of black, chocolate brown and Prussian blue accentuated by golden highlights, is reminiscent of Gianni Cinti's fashion work for Gianfranco Ferré.

Rosenthal Heritage – Midas

Everything becomes gold: Midas

The playful, baroque Rosenthal shape Sanssouci forms the stage for the Midas decor, which is mono-chromatic in gold. Patterns with distinctive twigs and leaves are laid on top of each other in layers, shimmering between matt and glossy surfaces and creating an extremely sensual interplay when they meet the porcelain relief. The three-dimensional camouflage décor is named after the mythological king Midas, whom Dionysus had fulfilled a wish: everything he touched turned to gold.

Magic Garden

Seeds, shoots, flowers: Magic Garden is a recurring wonder of nature on your dining table, inspired by plants from the pharmacy garden. The hortus medicus was the inspiration for the highly patterned and vibrantly coloured collection with three independent decors: Black Seeds, Foliage and Blossom symbolise the development stages of a plant: from seeds and seedlings to shoots and flowers. Magic Garden decors build on each other, increasing from pure black and white contrasts to green tones and a comprehensive colour palette.

Pucci Collection

Emilio Pucci was the first fashion designer to develop décors for the Rosenthal studio-line collection by transferring his characteristic fabric designs and prints to porcelain. The limited re-edition with the original designs Zadig and Palm Leaves is a tribute to the designer and links the historic partnership with the present.

Vesi

Vesi (finn: water) focuses on casual aesthetics and offers the right vase for every flower arrangement. In order to develop the right vase sizes, Mikko Laakkonen interviewed florists and incorporated their suggestions into the design process. The result is a decorative, yet functional, collection that sets the stage for flowers but also impresses on its own.

Flux

Opposites attract. Concretely at the bottom, abstractly at the top, “Flux” brings polarity to unity. The design darling made of fine porcelain is now also available as a beautifully shaped glass vase: very classic in clear, puristic in grey and in modern berry. The transparent material underlines the lightness and emphasises the flowing form of the vase, in which flower arrangements of all kinds find their stylish place.

Seven | Seven Contour

When it comes to the glamorous Seven vases by Jan Padrnos, the name says it all: Seven artistically arranged glass tubes, each arranged in the opposite direction, create a metallic-looking vase object with a design language all of its own. The individual glass cylinders made from robust borosilicate with elegant titanisation clear the stage for creative, individual flower arrangements.

Phi Lights

Fountain, Mitosis, Freeze, Spindrift, City, Manhattan, Snow – Rosenthal has translated the avant-garde textures by British designer Cairn Young into the unusual lamp collection PHI. Complex geometric patterns cover the white porcelain bodies, transforming the lamps into sculptural objects with a surprising 3D effect: Triangles become frosty flowers, crystals are shaped into snowflakes, cubic objects create a skyline. The translucent light breaks up the strict shapes and plays with the surface of the matte, translucent porcelain, whereby the fascinating reliefs are shown to their best advantage.

Cappello

With the likeable collection “Cappello” (Italian: hat), Rosenthal is calling for a charm offensive. The two-piece object initially disguises itself as a melon and then turns out to be a cup and saucer, which not only looks good but is also nice to hold in your hand thanks to the combination of matte and shiny porcelain. In addition to the classic version in porcelain dyed black throughout, “Cappello” is also available in puristic white.

Form 10550

Ribbed relief (Relief 1: vertical)

The vertical rib relief tastefully presents with modern clarity and straightforward elegance.

Form 10551

Diagonal relief (Relief 2: diagonal)

The refined diagonal relief appears almost artistically geometric.

Form 10552

Cross relief (Relief 3: crossed)

The cross relief is a harmonic synthesis of rib and diagonal relief and inspired by an elaborate compression of the lines.
